

The five themes of Geography!

The five themes of geography are simple they are place and movement, environment and interaction and last, and regions. In this I will talk about all of these and what they are you might know a lot of them already but you need to know them all if you want to know the five themes. So first I will talk about place then so on.

Place!

The first one is place, I'm sure you know what a place is but do you know what it means well place is a thing that is all over the world and there is places everywhere like a mall that's a place and a restraint that's a place right now we all rely on places without them then we would have everything just lying around so instead of a store we would just have shelves with all the products on it. Places are all unique and have different names and things inside. Every place has allocation and a map so you can find it all over the world. A place has many different things like a library has books and a restaurant has food and tables. So I think I told you enough about place so why not scroll down and I'll tell you about movement!

Movement!

Movement is everywhere we see people moving and animals moving if you think about pretty much everything moves in some way. Movement is a thing that everyone has to do to live and do thing daily if we couldn't move and nothing could move then our world would be pretty much frozen and there would be nothing. Movement is in anything like a delivery man bringing something to another person and animals move like birds flying south for the winter and horses running when there is a storm. So with no movement then we would be frozen and we wouldn't be able to do anything we do now. The next theme is environment and scroll down if you want to learn about that to!

Environment!

We all live in an environment and lots of people have different environments like people have a environment that they can live in and do things animals have an environment fit for them if a anima had no environment they would either die or starve to death because an animal needs a certain environment to live in like a wale can't live in a fish tank one thing because it's to small and anything in the tank wouldn't be good for it and a bird can't live in the water because they can't swim so they need a certain environment to live in. there are many different environments like some animal can only live in the heat and some have to live in the cold and humans can live in both because we have the resources and products to help us live in the cold and the heat and sometimes huge storms. The five things and sometimes humans need to survive are landforms, climate, water, soils, and natural vegetation. So if a dog had no water they would get really thirsty and possibly die. So what m saying is animals and humans need an environment to live. The next theme is interaction and it is the next paragraph so scroll down once again!

Interaction!

Interaction is when the earth interacts with humans like giving it food and shelter and water and other things for us to survive. Interaction is also when storms happen so a tornado happens with heat and wind interacting. Interaction is good and bad it's good because the earth grows food and catches water for us to live on, It's bad because it can start storms like tornados and hurricanes. Interaction is also can help use have electricity and food because we can take out forests and put in farms to grow food and use water to create electricity. Interaction is something we all need without we would have no food or power we would be able to do nothing except sit and rot away. So what I'm saying is we need interaction to live same with everything else I talked about and one more which is regions so scroll down for the last time and read all about regions!

Regions!

Regions are somewhat like places but they are bigger with places in them like the Middle East there places there like Iraq and other places like Montreal it has different places. Regions are everywhere and they can be any size and have any name. We live in a region and in Canada we live in a pretty large region. Without regions then there would be no Middle East or south east or north east so without them then people living there wouldn't know what it was called. A region is also on a map so people can go there. So what I'm saying is if there were no regions then Canada wouldn't even be word!

I told you about the five themes and you might of known some but now you know all of them so thanks for reading this in my words and I hope you liked it so thanks again for reading this and I hope you learned enough out of this and that you now know all the five themes of geography!!!!!!!
